

the Simplex, driven by Mitchell, which was doing splendid work until he suffered a broken crankshaft on the third round.

On the fourth lap, Chevrolet, who had been driving a splendid race in the Buick car, completed the circuit in 2:57, setting a record for the course.

By the completion of the third round, Chevrolet had forged into the lead, heading Knipper, in a Chalmers-Detroit, by 32 seconds. Lorimer, in a Chalmers-Detroit, was third, and Harding, in the Apperson, was fourth.

Even at this stage of the game the contest was becoming a runaway, and a number of the cars which were still on the track were virtually out of it.

On the sixth lap Joe Seymour, in an Isotta-Fraschini, went out of the race, owing to a broken pivot.

Breaks Crankshaft.

Hearne's Fiat went out on the fourth round with a broken crankshaft.

Strang was put out of the race on his second round, and narrowly escaped death, when a rock, probably thrown on the track by some mischievous person, was hurled into his radiator, crashing through it. Had the rock gone a few inches higher, it must have hit either the driver or the mechanic and would have resulted in certain death for one or the other.

At the end of the seventh lap Knipper, in his Chalmers-Detroit, had moved in to first place and was driving a splendid race. Lorimer, in his Chalmers-Detroit, had taken second place and was 32 seconds behind the leader. Harding, in the Apperson, was third, and Merz, in a National, was fourth.

Knipper's time for seven laps was 1 hour, 19 minutes and 58 seconds. Chevrolet had struck a snag and was out of the contest at this stage of the race.

After bringing his machine up to the pit, Strang and his mechanic patched up the broken radiator and resumed the race.

Chevrolet, who was leading at the time and driving a splendid race, was put out of the contest on the fourth lap, when he cracked the cylinder of the big Buick.

Atkin, in his National, lost a wheel at Meadowbrook, and quit the race.

Jack Rabbit Skids.

Harding, in the Apperson, a Jack Rabbit, skidded, and turned his machine over at the Massapequa on the ninth round. Although shaken up, neither he nor his mechanic were seriously hurt.

By the time the eleventh round of the big race had been reached, the half-way mark on the 25-mile journey, several of the fifteen cars had been put out completely out of the running.

A number of sensational laps had been torn off up to this time, the best being that of Chevrolet, who negotiated the fourth round in 2:57. The effort had cost him a cylinder, however, and put him out of the contest.

On the eleventh lap, Knipper, in a Chalmers-Detroit, was first, having gone the 133 miles in 2 hours 5 minutes and 21 seconds. Lorimer, his teammate, in another Chalmers-Detroit, was 44 seconds behind him.

Merz, driving a National, was third, about ten minutes back, and Parker, in the Fiat, was fourth, three minutes back of Merz.

The thirteenth round proved an unlucky one for Knipper, in the Chalmers-Detroit. While leading the race with a good margin to his credit, his car blew out a cylinder head and he was out of the contest.

Knipper Ousted.

As Knipper, in the Mercedes, completed his fifteenth lap, running fourth, Knipper, in the Chalmers-Detroit, finished, finishing his nineteenth. The twentieth round saw Knipper, who had been the leader since the fifth lap, ousted from his position.

The Fiat car, driven by Parker, which had attempted no spectacular speed stunts, had been driven at an average time of twenty minutes to the lap, and now came into first position.

Grant, in his Alce, swept into second place, and the race was now waiting for the details of the misfortune which was evident had put the second Chalmers-Detroit out of the leadership.

HEARST IS FAVORITE IN POPULAR OPINION

Editor's Views Find More Favor With Public Than in the Past.

Victory, for Gaynor will put the tail through with the hide. There is no denying that Hearst has had the best meetings of any mayoralty candidate; biggest and most enthusiastic.

The truth is that Hearst, in this town, is getting just a little into the position which William Jennings Bryan occupies in the nation. Everybody just immensely likes him all the time, except that on election he doesn't get quite enough votes. The Hearstites point with pride that the one ultra-radical Hearst municipal program is new the program of all the candidates; just as the Bryanites always point out that the Hearst and Bannard tickets are identical except at the top. Tammany will have to fight hard to keep the united Hearst and Hearst strength from pulling through the fusion ticket.

Gone the Limit.

The best you can find out about the tickets, below major, justifies the conclusion that Tammany has absolutely "gone the limit" in naming a rotten ticket. Its county tickets could hardly be worse. The board of estimate under Tammany would be as bad as the rottenest days of the ancient Tammany regime produced. Tammany frankly played for the worst slavery in the city while it reached for the best element with Gaynor. Gaynor, if elected along with that board of estimate, would be utterly hopeless; it wouldn't be material whether he had any deal with Tammany, because Tammany would be doing all the dealing.

So, as to this board of estimate, it is to be said that the fusion forces are making a desperate effort to save it. The Hearst and Bannard tickets are identical except at the top. Tammany will have to fight hard to keep the united Hearst and Hearst strength from pulling through the fusion ticket.

Tammany Worried.

Tammany is undeniably worried very badly. To lose its grip right now would be a fearful catastrophe for the organization.

You hear no end of talk about the sinister big business interests that are back of this campaign; but it is difficult to get a clear understanding of what they are, and how they are aligned. The Ryan-Belmont-Interborough-Metro-Politan interest is set down as supporting Bannard; the rival traction group, which wants to get the new subway privileges, is credited to the support of Gaynor.

The story goes that when the Ryan-Belmont people inflated and unloaded the traction shares which are now worth almost nothing, they permitted a lot of powerful people in Tammany to get their fingers plucked in the smash. These people are out for revenge. They want to be sure of controlling that sort of thing in the future.

Baker's Stand.

On the eve of the election interest centers on the possibility that the Redrag Governor Hughes into the campaign at the last moment to nullify an order given to policemen by Commissioner Baker, several days ago—that no arrests on charges of illegal registration should be made until after election.

"That order had better not be carried out," said Congressman Herbert Parsons, manager for Otto Bannard today. "It will be better for the police commissioner if no attempt is made to carry it out."

Parsons would not state what steps are being taken. He declared emphatically that the Baker order is illegal.

WILLING TO SETTLE FOR CABBAGE DINNER

Philip Price Willing to Go to Jail to Pay for Stealing Dinner.

"Ah don't bear you no hard feelin', judge, yo' honor," declared Philip Price when arraigned in the Police Court this morning charged with stealing cabbage, and sentenced to spend nine months in jail.

"Dat cabbage dinner sho' did taste good to mah, an' am' worth de punishment," Price, while loafing around the Baltimore and Ohio freight yards, beheld a sight that filled his empty stomach with longing, for coming into the yard he spied a cartload of savory cabbages from the sunny South. The temptation was too great to be resisted and Price broke into the car and surreptitiously abstracted a head of the tempting dainty.

When he appeared in court this morning, Price had the look of a well-fed, contented man, and accepted his sentence with the greatest equanimity.

GEBHARDT IN JAIL; TO BE INDICTED

Formally Arrested for Murder of Anna Luther, He Seems Indifferent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Stolidly indifferent and without speaking a word during the entire procedure, Frederick Gebhardt, alias Otto Mueller, self-confessed murderer of Anna Luther, was formally charged in the town hall at Islip with first degree murder. As the warrant was read to him his lip curled in a sneer, and he placed his head on his hand and grinned. Not once did he look at his wife or two children, although they were seated within three yards of him.

In the crowd of Islip residents who viewed Gebhardt there were more women than men. They strained their necks in an effort to get a clearer view of the prisoner. As he entered the courtroom a group of the women stood on chairs. So unruly did the crowd become that Coroner Savage twice threatened to clear the room.

SYLVESTER BULLS PUMPKIN MARKET

Police Chief's Order Makes Block in St. Johnsbury, Vt., Small Boy Abandon Other Plans.

WILL BE CONTENTED WITH JACK LANTERN

Various Little Schemes, Based Upon Superstition, Will Form Entertainment.

Halloween probably will be more strictly observed in Washington in the summer in which it originally was observed by the Scotch folk ever before in the history of the Capital.

Major Sylvester's orders to the police force have about conclusively settled that there will be fewer tick-tacks, missing gates and a smaller movement of things generally tonight than was the case last year, or, in fact, in any year in the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

The small boy already has given up the idea of celebrating in the popular American way. He has invoked the aid of his teacher, and has taken a brief course in Scottish lore to find out how the occasion may be celebrated properly without involving the work of plain clothesmen and bicycle policemen.

The result is that more Jack o'lanterns by hundreds are being made than last year. Various little schemes, based upon superstition and supernatural influences, are being worked up.

All Right, If—

If celebrating Halloween in this manner satisfies the annual longing of youth to give up all may be well. If it doesn't—but that's another story, except there may be more loose gates around the city another year than there promise to be tomorrow morning.

This might well be called "Bobby Burns' Night" in Washington. The biggest part of the celebration will be like the kind Burns used to observe.

Hallowe'en, of course, had its origin in Scotland, where the spirits, as they say, are "blithesome and bonny." It is thought to be an outgrowth of the Gaelic observance of "All Saints' day." The underlying idea is that it is a time of all others when supernatural influences are at their strongest.

One Superstition.

If the nut cracked or jumped, the one form which it was named, would prove unfaithful; if it blazed or burned, the lover, at least, would have some regard for the person making the trial; if the nuts named after the girl and her lover blazed or burned together, then it undoubtedly signified that they would marry.

There are hundreds of other superstitions, all of which will get a chance tomorrow to demonstrate their right to participate in Halloween celebrations.
